SENATOR EDMUNDS' polygamy bill, after a sharp discussion, passed the senate. Its provisions are much severer than the original bill, and the saints (?) are kicking like bay steers over their dubious prospects.

THERE is a great surplus of gold in the National Treasury and there is another in the banks. The timidest soul that walks the streets need not distress himself through fear of the country's ruin just yet. It is rather a large country, overflowing with natural wealth; there are 55,000,000 of people in it, generally enterprising, industrious, thrifty and hopeful. The natural wealth is to be developed and they will develop it. There is no cause for the gold exporting scare at all. That is a little episode of the passing hour, and suggestive only of the necessity for less extravagance in buying foreign luxuries and more care in keeping down the foreign score.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

ENGLISH vessels and English methods have about driven the American flag from the sea. True, we have some coasting trade left and until recently a considerable fleet of vessels have found it profitable to supply the Cuban planters with American hogsheads and bring back sugar. But now even this trade is rapidly disappearing and the West India fleet must look elsewhere for employment, unless Congress can be made to do something in the way of relief. The remedy seems to be very simple. Because of a discrimination in favor of cheap English-made bags, by which the export duty on sugar is reduced when shipped in them, the American hogsheads are being discarded. Vessels which have been carrying shoeks and heads, no longer able to get a freight out, must give way to English "tramps" or steamers, which are continually cruising around for employment. The English bags are threatening the entire sugar trade with the West Indies and Congress is now asked to increase the duty on sugar in bags one-fourth cent per pound or decrease that imported in American hogsheads to the same amount. This will place the hogshead and the bag on equal footing. If there is any chance to retain the little trade we have left the chance ought to be accepted.

THE exodus of negroes from the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, now at its height, is the most extensive ever known, and is exciting widespread attention in the south.

EXCELSIOR seems to be the average Kansan's motto: "Mrs. August Blume, wife of the chairman of the board of county commissioners, gave birth, last Sunday, to a girl baby which weighed 18 pounds. The infant did not live."—Atwood Democrat.
